What is the FlexScan?

The FlexScan shows the experienced and desired flexibility in education. The FlexScan helps you with questions like: how flexible is the current curriculum? Does everyone have the same vision of flexible education? To what extent is more flexibility desirable? Is it a matter of personalisation of individual learning journeys, or is it about increasing the number of given options in the programme?

How does the FlexScan work?

The FlexScan focusses on various aspects that are important in the student journey from A to Z. Such as information, intake, learning environment (programme), assessment and certification. The underlying basis is also discussed: the educational professionals and logistic aspects of education. In sum: the FlexScan provides insight into the actual situation and helps to outline the path to the desired situation. For more flexible education, from curriculum design to professionalisation of teachers.

After an intake meeting, you can work with it independently or with support from CINOP. CINOP provides support with advisory reports, introductory workshops, results workshops and more.

Tailor-made solutions for various target groups

The FlexScan is flexible itself and customisable: it can be applied at the team level, department level or across the entire institution, focusing both on individuals and groups.

FlexScans have been developed for degree programmes at the level of higher secondary vocational education and training (VET) and higher professional education (HE). As a result, the FlexScan can be adapted to the specific needs of a wide range of target groups: students, teachers, programme managers, policymakers, and the broader professional field; both nationally and internationally.

CINOP is an expert in the field of flexible education and a strategic partner in learning for tailor-made solutions. We are flexible ourselves in this respect. We are happy to discuss what best suits your organisation.
